The Pukekohe Vegetable Growers Association is a charitable organization that operates in the Auckland and Waikato regions. The association has operated in various forms as a grower organization since the early 1900s. It represents more than 230 vegetable-growing businesses from the Auckland region. These vary from small family-run businesses to large corporate organizations - some of which have operations throughout New Zealand. These growers produce a large proportion of fresh vegetables for the Auckland region as well as export crops. The exports include onions, potatoes, buttercup squash, capsicums, tomatoes, and carrots.
